The Challenges and alternative solution for the issues, regarding Budhi Gandaki Hydropower project: More than 45,000 Nepalis stand to be displaced in the Budhi Gandaki Hydropower Project, posing a big challenge to developers and the government. The premise for BGHEP rests upon a perceived need for storage projects to balance out run-of-river projects that currently dominate Nepal’s hydro portfolio. As per the expert opinion of Mr. Bishnu Sharma Nepal Devkota assistant professor of economics at University of Minnesota, and Nepal executive director of Waterplan Nepal Pvt Ltd, Kathmandu, cascade configurations could be used to operate a single power producer rather than several separate entities. They have also suggested, how the NEA could work towards, collaborating with foreign investors for the cascade development, but maintain the lead in operation and management.
