

HRRP Partners' Forum

Community driven reconstruction in urban traditional settlements

With presentations by : Suresh Pradhan, Sankhu Reconstruction Committee, Lumanti Joshi, Lumanti, Prem Bhakta Maharjan, Bungamati Reconstruction Committee

Introduction, comments and moderation by: Jennifer Duyne Barenstein, HRRP and Lajana Manandhar, Lumanti

Kathmandu, Babar Mahal, DUDBC, Meeting Hall

Thursday, 26 May 2016, 14:00 -16:15

Agenda

- Welcome by Arshad Rashid, HRRP
- Basic principles of Community Driven reconstruction by Jennifer Duyne, HRRP
- Community's Reconstruction Visions and Plans in Sankhu by Suresh Pradhan, Sankhu Reconstruction Committee
- Building settlements with communities in Machhegaun and Thecho by Lumanti Joshi, Lumanti
- Rebuilding Bungamati, by Prem Bhakta Maharjan, Bungamati Reconstruction Committee
- Comments and ways to move forward, by Lajana Manandhar, Lumanti
- Discussion, moderated by Jennifer Duyne, HRRP

What do we mean by community participation

Community participation refers the direct engagement of affected people in the project cycle:

- Assessment
- Planning and design
- Implementation
- Monitoring
- Evaluation

How communities participate in reconstruction

Reconstruction activity	Opportunity for community participation in reconstruction
Assessment	Conduct: - housing assessment census - community-led needs assessment - local environmental assessment - mapping of affected area and changes - stakeholder analysis
Planning and design	Prioritize and plan projects - Carry out participatory site planning and site evaluations - Identify targeting criteria and qualify households - Participate in training (DRR and construction methods) - Assist with grievance procedures
Project development and implementation	Carry out and/or oversee: - housing reconstruction, including housing of vulnerable households - infrastructure reconstruction - reconstruction of public facilities (schools, community buildings, and clinics) Manage: - Financial disbursement - Community warehouses
Monitoring and evaluation	- Supervise construction - Participate in monitoring and social committees - Conduct participatory evaluations

Guiding principles of community driven reconstruction

- Community-driven reconstruction starts with mobilizing the community to do their own assessment;
- Strong commitment and leadership for a bottom-up approach are required from the top;
- Communities are not homogeneous and there may not be consensus on ways to move forward;
- The scale for effective community engagement needs to be considered and may be quite small;
- There are numerous methods to facilitate community participation, which need to be appropriate or adapted to the context;
- Transparency and effective communication are essential to sustain community engagement and credibility.

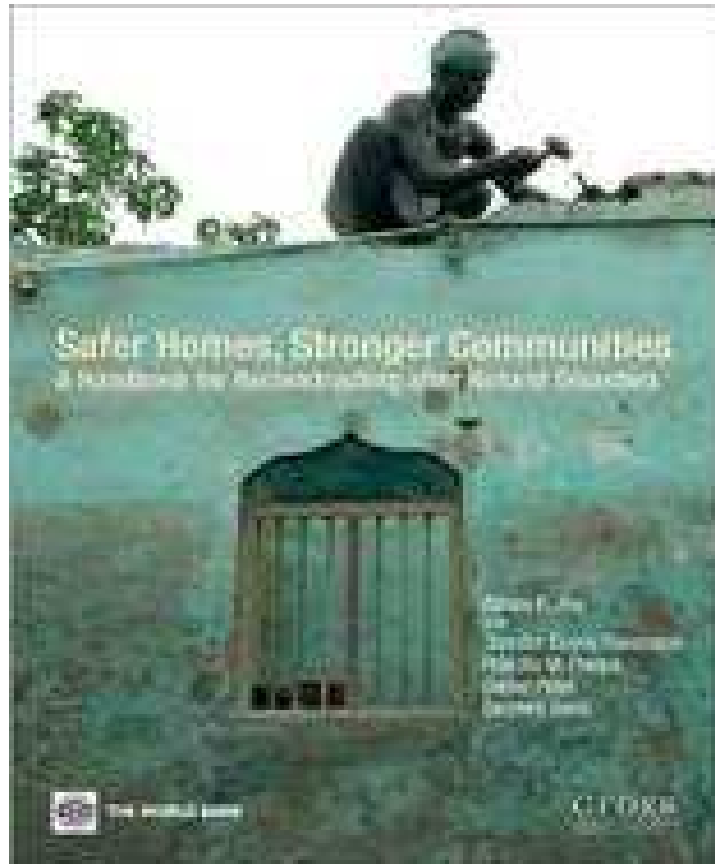

Types of participation and role of affected community

Type of participation	Role of affected community
Local initiative	Conceives, initiates, and runs projects independently; agencies participate in communities' projects
Interactive	Participate in the analysis of needs and in program conception and has decision-making power
Through the supply of materials, cash, or labour	Supplies materials and/or labor needed to operationalize an intervention or co-finances it, helps decide how these inputs are used
Through material incentives	Supplies materials and/or labor needed to operationalize an intervention. Receives cash or in-kind payment from agency
By consultation	Asked for its perspectives on a given subject but has no decision-making powers
Through the supply of information	Provides information to agency in response to questions but has no influence over the process
Passive	Informed of what is going to happen or what has occurred

Key decisions

- The lead agencies needs to engage with affected communities, local governments and other agencies involved in reconstruction and define the role of communities in planning and managing reconstruction;
- Affected communities should decide how they will organize themselves to participate in the reconstruction effort;
- Agencies involved in reconstruction should decide how they will support and empower communities to play the roles they have agreed to take on, and how two-way communication will be established and maintained throughout reconstruction;
- Local governments should define their roles in supporting reconstruction at the community level, in consultation with communities, the lead agency , and other agencies involved in reconstruction.

For details see:

Now Available

Safer Homes, Stronger Communities: A Handbook for Reconstructing After Natural Disasters

by Abhas K. Jha (World Bank),
Jennifer E. Duyne Barenstein (WHRC),
Priscilla M. Phelps (TCGI), Stephen Sena
(TCGI), and Daniel Pittet (WHRC)

Published by the World Bank

Find more information at:

www.housingreconstruction.org