

WEEKLY BULLETIN

18 December 2017

In April 2017 the HRRP team met with Bijita Bista from Sindhuli who had just completed an On the Job Masons Training course and was excited to start working as a mason – you can watch Bijita’s story from April here. At the beginning of December, the HRRP team met with Bijita again and heard that her experience post-training has not been very positive. Contractors in her area do not want to hire women and she has been unable to secure work as a mason – watch her story here.

Women in Aalampu, Dolakha carry the stones for reconstructing their homes. More than 150 houses, out of 592 that need to be rebuilt, are now under construction. The NSET Baliyo Ghar programme have provided short mason trainings and On-the Job mason training to support compliant reconstruction and women are encouraged to take part in the trainings and work as masons on completion of the training.

■ AWARENESS OF SAFER BUILDING PRACTICES BY GENDER

The Inter-Agency Common Feedback Project Report from October 2017 found that women still report having less awareness of safer building practices than men. The August 2017 CFP report highlighted that women consistently report not having been meaningfully engaged in the reconstruction process, or treated as agents of the recovery. This problem has played out in various ways at all stages of the recovery and reconstruction and serious strategic consideration must now be given to addressing this from all stakeholders involved in the reconstruction. If more than 50% of the population are not encouraged and supported to take part in the reconstruction it is unlikely that the expected results can be achieved.

Godi Maya from Manthali, Ramechhap tells her reconstruction story – watch the video here.

UNDP Nepal have produced a very interesting series of 9 short videos looking at gender role reversal and deconstructing gender stereotypes. The videos can be viewed here.
