Questions Collected

Question	Who Asked the Question?	Response Provided (By Whom)
Beneficiaries wants to shift to retrofitting list from full damage houses, but sufficient clarity on retrofitting measures has not reached to them. What kind be the possible measures to facilitate beneficiaries who intends to retrofit their houses?	Representative, POs	Beneficiaries who intends to retrofit their houses should report to concerned municipality which will again request to DLPIU Building and DLPIU GMaLI for necessary procedures. Engineers will cross check whether the houses are suitable for retrofitting or not. Further, there should be enough clarity among beneficiaries and engineers about retrofitting processes. Well trained masons having retrofitting knowledge should be in place too. (Chief, DLPIU NRA GMaLI, Kathmandu)

Challenges and Way Forward

Challenge	Way Forward
The question of sustainability along with liability of project activities undertaken by POs once they phase out, are often neglected.	The POs that are in verge of completing their project timeline from concerned project area (municipality/ward) should reflect over the sustainability aspects of the activities that they have conducted. They should conduct project exit meeting by involving key decision makers of concerned project areas (elected bodies of municipality, ward), including concerned district level government agencies etc. to hand over the liability of sustaining the project outcomes.
The reconstruction issues of core areas such as multiple beneficiaries, small land parcel, lack of land ownership papers etc is delaying the planning process of land pooling and house pooling measures.	Sufficient planning meeting should be conducted among concerned beneficiaries, by involving elected local representatives and also the concerned district government agencies that are responsible to address land and revenue related issues.
